Press-spahn and micanite are the insulators generally used, and the former requires to be specially treated to render it moisture-proof. These materials can be obtained in almost any thickness, but it is preferable to use two or three layers of thin material in making up the slot lining to the required thickness. Thus suppose a slot requires to be lined with press-spahn to a thickness F1g. 156. -- Loop for bar-wound armature. of 0. 75 millimetre, then three layers, each 0. 25 millimetre thick, would be used, as it is more flexible and has a somewhat higher disruptive strength than single sheets of equivalent thickness.
