Hough, Delivered in the Reformed Dutch Church, May 5th, 1867 For what is your life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a Little time and then vanisheth away. James iv; 14. This language is highly figurative, and when considered in its simple and appropriate sense, contains an affecting lesson on the shortness and uncertainty of human life. In the preceding verse we are appropriately admonished not to presume on length of days, and consequently not to promise ourselves certain opportunities for the promotion of plans which involve future time. The current of time sweeps on admonishing and engulfing man, with all his possessions, plans and hopes. Generation after generation is borne away to join the great congregation of the dead. The seas shall waste, the skies to smoke decay, Rocks fall to dust and mountains melt away. Nature has her times and seasons.
